To whom this may concern,

I write to your organisation regarding seven priorities outlined in the 'Make Disability Count' and Pauline Hanson's One Nation if we were to hold the balance power at the upcoming Queensland State Election 2020.

Below are Pauline Hanson's One Nation commitments as per the seven priorities outlined in your previous documentation.

1. Independent individual and systemic advocacy

One Nation is committed to continued investment in independent individual and system advocacy across disability, health, and mental health for people with disability.

2. Investment in frontline community services

One Nation is committed to investing in community services to support vulnerable groups within the community to deliver mental wellbeing responses to support people who have been impacted by COVID-19 pandemic and recovery going forward, with specific focus in regional, rural and remote communities.

3. Disability leadership, governance and accountability across mainstream services

One Nation commits if it holds the balance of power in Queensland Parliament to the following:

- A dedicated Minister for Disability and Inclusion;
- The establishment of a robust State Disability Plan across all Government portfolio that require each Department to publicly report on targets and outcomes to deliver inclusive, accessible, affordable, quality, safe services;
- Monitor service and systems performance across mainstream services including housing, health, justice, disaster and emergency management, jobs, education, transport, and NDIS;
- Implement the outcomes and recommendations of the Disability Royal Commission and subsequent Queensland and Commonwealth inquiries, including the Queensland Productivity Commission Inquiry, into the National Disability Insurance Scheme.

4. Human Rights

Whilst One Nation supports some aspects of this priority, we cannot support it in its entirety due to the implications it may have on the wider community.

5. Workforce

One Nation is committed to grow, develop and maintain a skilled disability, community, health and mental health workforce to deliver quality services, particularly for vulnerable groups and job creation and job growth in these sectors.

6. Sector capacity

One Nation commits to investment in disability, community services industry and sector peaks, including consumer peak bodies to continue to build capacity, resilience and well-being of the sector to respond to current and ongoing COVID-19 environment to be a thriving, strong sector that contributes to the economic outcomes of Queensland.

7. Inclusive Education

One Nation commits to implement the 17 recommendations from the Deloitte Review of Education for Students with Disability in Queensland State Schools published in February 2017. One Nation believes in the merits of full compliance with Education Queensland's Inclusive Education Policy be made mandatory for all state funded and operated schools, and sector capacity building for all staff as necessary and effective monitoring and reporting of implementation and outcomes. However, any funding and sector capacity building should not be at the disadvantage of all students.

One Nation looks forward to working with peak bodies and the disability sector throughout Queensland if we hold the balance of power.

Yours Sincerely,

Neil Symes
